

Rigby Cooke Lawyers Appoints Two New Partners

Melbourne, 2 May 2011: Rigby Cooke Lawyers has announced the internal promotions of Rhodie Anderson and Greg Bush to the partnership, reinforcing the calibre of legal professionals within the firm.

"Our strength as a firm and expertise is reflected in the quality of our legal professionals and it is especially rewarding to see appointments to partnership from within," said Managing Partner, David Lawson.

As a partner in the Planning & Environment group at Rigby Cooke, Rhodie Anderson specializes in providing commercially appropriate and strategic advice on planning, environment and land use regulatory issues.

Experienced in working with private and public sector clients, Construction and Major Projects Partner Greg Bush provides legal advice for construction and engineering organizations across procurement, contract administration, management, litigation and dispute resolution.
