The Construction and Major Projects Group of Rigby Cooke Lawyers have acted on some of Australia's largest infrastructure, commercial construction and residential high-rise developments; for developers, owners, contractors, subcontractors and consultants.

Our Construction and Major Projects group specialists apply their extensive experience in commercial, litigation and property law to provide comprehensive advice across the spectrum of legal issues affecting our industry clients.

Team members specialise in negotiating and drafting project specific contracts and advising on contractual claims and strategies, as well as dispute resolution including security of payment remedies, arbitration and litigation for principals, contractors and subcontractors in the construction and resources sector.

For all our clients, from large global organisations to individuals, we ensure that our cost effective advice is:

Succinct - advice that clearly addresses the legal issues at hand and offers a recommended way forward;

Timely - advice that is available when you need it; and

Written in Plain English - advice that can be understood and implemented quickly and easily.

We understand that legal risk has an impact on commercial outcomes for organisations of all sizes and across all industries. We work closely with our clients to understand their organisation and we draw upon our industry expertise to provide the best advice to assist them to realise their commercial objectives.
