

Arielle Vlahiotis

Lawyer

T: +61 3 9321 7893

E: AVlahiotis@rigbycooke.com.au

Arielle Vlahiotis is a lawyer in our Corporate & Commercial group.

Arielle has assisted on a range of corporate and commercial law matters, including unfair contract terms, privacy, Australian privacy principles (APPs), compliance with ASIC and corporations law, and commercial and retail leases. She has worked with clients from various industries, including property, construction, manufacturing, transport & logistics, and not-for-profit.

Arielle is passionate about helping clients navigate areas of commercial law so that they can make informed, strategic decisions that align with both legal obligations and smart business strategy.

Expertise

Corporate & Commercial

Privacy & Data Protection

Significant experience

- Drafting and reviewing privacy policies, collection notices and advising on the implementation of these documents in businesses.
- Assisting clients on various commercial issues, including unfair contract terms, privacy, commercial and retail leases, and compliance with ASIC and corporations law.
- Assisting in completing due diligence and reviewing documents for the purchase of a $43 million building in the Melbourne CBD for a property developer.
- Reviewing and investigating the ownership of multiple properties for a large charity.
- Assisting in providing advice to a gambling company on the requirements for a tender in the WA gambling industry.

Qualifications

Juris Doctor,
The University of Melbourne

Bachelor of Fine Arts
(Design and Production),
The University of Melbourne

Memberships

Law Institute of Victoria